Triggered lightning from a natural thunderstorm at the University of Florida's Lightning Research Center at Camp Blanding

Triggering is accomplished by firing a rocket trailing a grounded wire toward the thundercloud. The straight line is the exploded wire and the tortuous channels are natural strokes.